

Where Everything Ends

Back in our childhood days we were innocent in search of clues for our existence

We are part of the wheel of life born into a world of greed and hateful faces we strive for goals

Where everything ends it will start again and where it all starts it will end again

It feels like we are prisoners of time and our job is to make a difference we speak of charity, but act selfishness It is time to change something

It brings tears to my eyes when I see how some people act reckless and without respect for life that has to end, immediately

Where everything ends it will start again
and where it all starts it will end again

No one can escape and hide, nobody will forget when the time comes, we will pay for our sins.

Where everything ends it will start again
and where it all starts it will end again

Where everything ends it will start again
and where it all starts it will end again

Where everything ends it will start again
and where it all starts it will end again
